Welcome

Little Orlagh Niamh McElroy was happy to join the Christian community last weekend at a small intimate service, just not as happy about getting her photo taken!

Graveyards

I have received requests from parishioners to ask people to bring old spent wreaths home to dispose of properly. While it is an honourable thing to place wreaths on the graves of loved ones at significant times, that honour is diminished when the wreaths are not disposed of in the proper way once they are spent. I have also been asked to explain that a double grave is two caskets wide in shallow soil and two caskets deep in deep soil. In the middle of the graveyard it was difficult to get two deep but in the top of Belcruit this is quite achievable. As space is running out it is important that available space is used conservatively.
